Residences lose parity

by Norm Tollinsky

A student proposal for parity on the Senate sub-committee for residence policy was voted down yesterday at a meeting of this body.

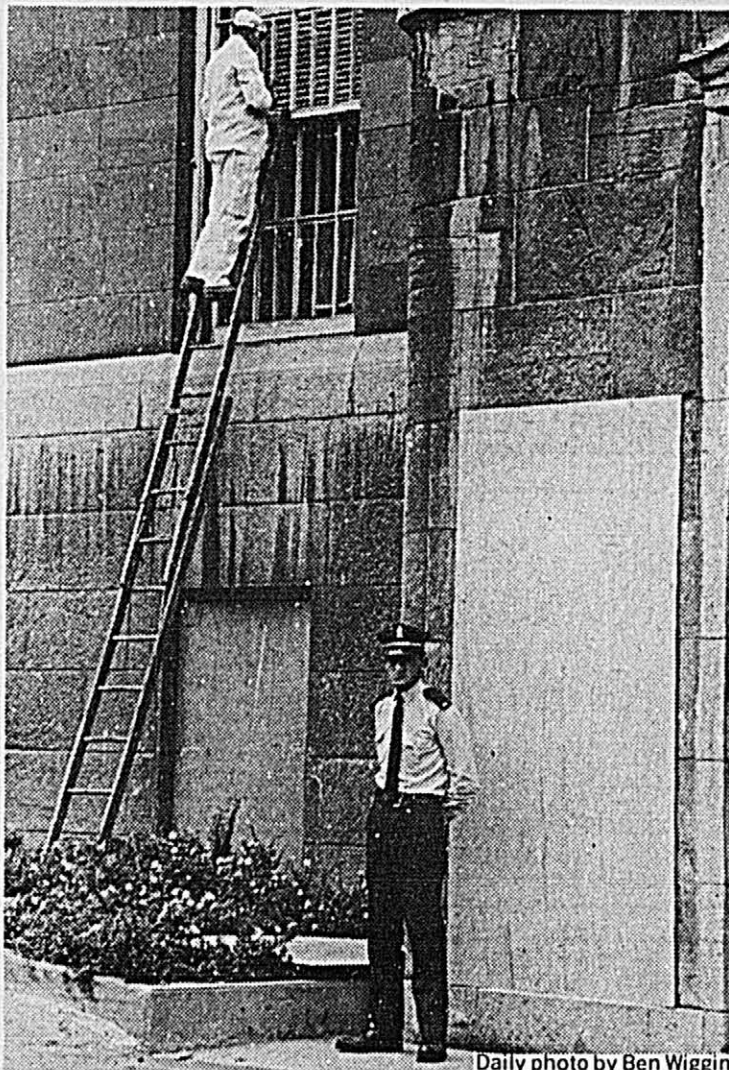

David Young, Students' Society Internal Vice-President, backed by the support of the presidents of all five University residences, proposed the following composition for the sub-committee: four students chosen by the residences, three students chosen by the Students' Society, and seven persons, including the chairman, representing faculty and administration.

As an alternative to Young's proposal, faculty and administrators expressed their preference for a committee composed of eight staff members, including a chairman, and seven students.

Young is not satisfied with this counter-proposal. He fears that seven-seven ties could consistently be transformed into student defeats by the tie breaking vote of chairman Vice-Principal (Administration) Robert Shaw. According to Young, his own proposal is the only one capable of providing true parity.

Mr. Shaw has agreed to postpone presentation of the proposal passed today to the parent Senate committee that controls the residence sub-committee.

Young said, "I hope that, in the interim, enough support will be obtained in residences and on Students' Council to make Shaw aware of the fact that the decision taken yesterday is not supported by students".

Damage to McGill costs $25,000

Damage to McGill as a result of Tuesday's attack was estimated at $25,000, mostly in broken windows.

Approximately 20 vandals first appeared on campus about 10:30 pm, and by the time they were repulsed by students, fifteen minutes later, a trail of broken glass marked the buildings where they had been.

McLennan had its windows on Sherbrooke St. shattered; the Administration Building sustained heavier damage. Several other buildings also incurred slight damage.

At the same time as the vandals were attacking the Administration Building and setting a fire in a small printing shop, on the main floor, Vice-Principal (Administration) Robert Shaw was in his office, preparing for a morning meeting. He told his secretary to keep on working, that there was nothing they could do.

A few minutes later his car had been overturned.

The events of Tuesday evening contrasted strongly with the atmosphere of quiet security which had pervaded the campus earlier in the day.

The possibility of a student strike in the near future looms large at Loyola today following a vote by the College's Senate upholding the administration dismissal of physics professor S. Santhanum.

The motion was passed by a vote of 14 to 2, but only after 10 members of the Senate had walked out. These included the three student senators and seven out of eight Arts Faculty representatives on the body.

The eighth Arts Senator was not present at the meeting.

The motion passed by the Senate read:

"That, notwithstanding any previous recommendation... of this Senate to the contrary, and without the intervention of any study committee or arbitration committee, the Senate hereby recommends to the President that Dr. S. Santhanum not be re-hired as an assistant professor in the Physics Department."

The seven professors that walked out of the Senate meeting also submitted their resignations.

However, they will reportedly seek re-election during the coming weeks.

One of the seven to walk out and resign was Dr. D. Savage, a history professor and president of the Loyola Faculty Association.

The Loyola Students' Association will hold a press conference this afternoon when LSA President Marcel Nouvet will announce plans for student protest.

"We are considering the most effective forms of actions so a strike cannot be discounted" said the LSA External Vice-President Paul Louffy.

Professor Santhanum was fired last July for disputed reasons. Loyola University has maintained that, although his research record was "commendable," his teaching abilities were seriously in doubt.

Santhanum had signed a statement in 1968 stating that he did not intend to return to Loyola after June of 1969. However, he apparently subsequently signed a contract for the 1969-70 year, which was supposed to supersede previous agreements.

In June of this year, the Loyola Senate passed a motion recommending that Santhanum's case be re-examined by the administration and that he be given a contract for at least the coming year.

However, the Board of Trustees of the College, which is composed of seven Jesuit fathers, rejected the Senate motion.

At the next Senate meeting of the College, a motion of censure against the Board of Trustees was introduced. However, the motion never came to a vote.

Few attend convocation to receive diplomas

McGill presented 525 diplomas yesterday afternoon, but only 176 graduates bothered to come to the convocation ceremonies and accept them from Governor General Roland Michener.

Honorary degrees were awarded to three ex-McGill professors, Dr. Judah Hirsch Quastel, Dr. Kenneth Hare, and Dr. Noel Fieldhouse.

Dr. Quastel was Professor of Biochemistry at McGill from 1947-66, and Director of the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute.

Dr. Hare is a former Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at McGill, and was Chairman of the Geography Department from 1950 to 1962.

He recently resigned as President of UBC, and is now a professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Fieldhouse was Dean of Arts and Sciences, and Chairman of the History Department from 1948-62. He was McGill's Vice-Principal (Academic) from 1962-66.

In his convocation address, Dr. Fieldhouse reflected that in the past 40 years that he has been teaching, that he has observed that different groups claim the right to dissent. "Forty years ago, if students had any politically-inspired complaints against a teacher, it was usually that he was too 'radical'. Today, the complaint is likely to be that he is not 'radical' enough."

Comment

In the last few years, the politicians in the province of Quebec have allowed a situation to produced a powderkeg of intolerance of the night before last. An emphasis on "la politique de grandeur" rather than the needs of the people, on the furtherance of personal ambition instead of the discharge of the duties for which they were elected, on circuses instead of bread, has produced a powderkeg of intolerable tensions. Continually, unthinkable strikes have occurred in essential services, paralyzing the province and endangering its people, but the government, instead of remedying the situation which brought these about, has arrogantly ignored grievances and taken punitive and destructive action.

A strike in essential services appears, as a matter of fact, to harm everyone except the government responsible. The strikers often have legitimate complaints which have been arrogantly or negligently ignored. The crisis in Quebec education for example, would have been settled long ago if Mr. Cardinal and Mr. Masse had been more interested in their departments than in their selfish interest in the preservation of their external authority. When a damaging strike does take place, not many members of the general public are going to take any altruistic or liberal attitudes and support the strikers to the detriment of their own interest: this is a sad fact of political life. Therefore an unscrupulous government can afford to wait until the public is beginning to hurt, and then step in with punitive legislation at hardly any risk to its popularity. And the aggrieved parties are back in their original difficulties.

There is no excuse for the flagrant disregard of the public interest by Montreal police and firemen. No monetary grievance can justify the risks to human life of abandoning two million people to anarchy. Two men were murdered that night. But nothing can justify the negligence by the Drapeau-Saulnier administration that allowed this disaster to occur. Or the past, present, and future negligence by governments at all levels, of the threat posed by their smug indifference to the needs of the people.

since four Administration members of the Senate walked out, breaking the quorum.

Following this, Santhanum appealed to the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

Last Monday, Loyola received a telegram from CAUT stating that Santhanum's case should be submitted to binding arbitration, and that the doctor should be kept on salary and given use of his laboratories.

However, the Loyola administration has rejected the CAUT decision, and the Loyola faculty will take no action until the CAUT general conference in November.

Residences lose parity

by Norm Tollinsky

A student proposal for parity on the Senate sub-committee for residence policy was voted down yesterday at a meeting of this body.

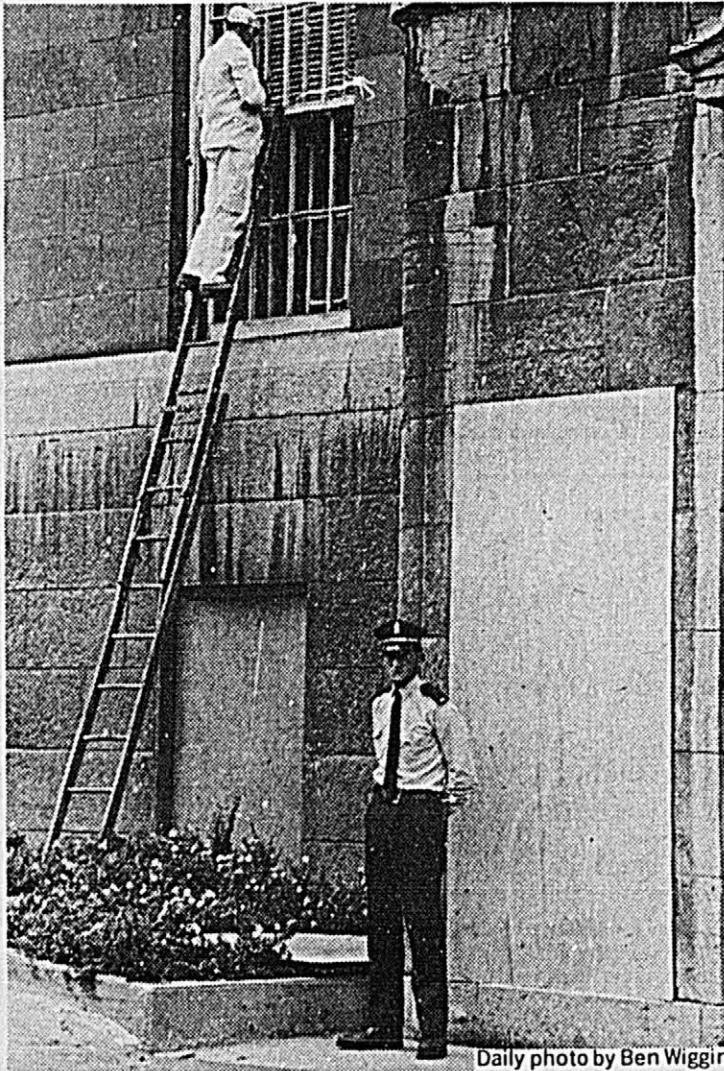

David Young, Students' Society Internal Vice-President, backed by the support of the presidents of all five University residences, proposed the following composition for the sub-committee: four students chosen by the residences, three students chosen by the Students' Society, and seven persons, including the chairman, representing faculty and administration.

As an alternative to Young's proposal, faculty and administrators expressed their preference for a committee composed of eight staff members, including a chairman, and seven students.

Young is not satisfied with this counter-proposal. He fears that seven-seven ties could consistently be transformed into student defeats by the tie breaking vote of chairman Vice-Principal (Administration) Robert Shaw. According to Young, his own proposal is the only one capable of providing true parity.

Mr. Shaw has agreed to postpone presentation of the proposal passed today to the parent Senate committee that controls the residence sub-committee.

Young said, "I hope that, in the interim, enough support will be obtained in residences and on Students' Council to make Shaw aware of the fact that the decision taken yesterday is not supported by students".

Damage to McGill costs $25,000

Damage to McGill as a result of Tuesday's attack was estimated at $25,000, mostly in broken windows.

Approximately 20 vandals first appeared on campus about 10:30 pm, and by the time they were repulsed by students, fifteen minutes later, a trail of broken glass marked the buildings where they had been.

McLennan had its windows on Sherbrooke St. shattered; the Administration Building sustained heavier damage. Several other buildings also incurred slight damage.

At the same time as the vandals were attacking the Administration Building and setting a fire in a small printing shop, on the main floor, Vice-Principal (Administration) Robert Shaw was in his office, preparing for a morning meeting. He told his secretary to keep on working, that there was nothing they could do.

A few minutes later his car had been overturned.

The events of Tuesday evening contrasted strongly with the atmosphere of quiet security which had pervaded the campus earlier in the day.

The possibility of a student strike in the near future looms large at Loyola today following a vote by the College's Senate upholding the administration dismissal of physics professor S. Santhanum.

The motion was passed by a vote of 14 to 2, but only after 10 members of the Senate had walked out. These included the three student senators and seven out of eight Arts Faculty representatives on the body.

The eighth Arts Senator was not present at the meeting.

The motion passed by the Senate read:

"That, notwithstanding any previous recommendation... of this Senate to the contrary, and without the intervention of any study committee or arbitration committee, the Senate hereby recommends to the President that Dr. S. Santhanum not be re-hired as an assistant professor in the Physics Department."

The seven professors that walked out of the Senate meeting also submitted their resignations.

However, they will reportedly seek re-election during the coming weeks.

One of the seven to walk out and resign was Dr. D. Savage, a history professor and president of the Loyola Faculty Association.

The Loyola Students' Association will hold a press conference this afternoon when LSA President Marcel Nouvet will announce plans for student protest.

"We are considering the most effective forms of actions so a strike cannot be discounted" said the LSA External Vice-President Paul Louffy.

Professor Santhanum was fired last July for disputed reasons. Loyola University has maintained that, although his research record was "commendable," his teaching abilities were seriously in doubt.

Santhanum had signed a statement in 1968 stating that he did not intend to return to Loyola after June of 1969. However, he apparently subsequently signed a contract for the 1969-70 year, which was supposed to supersede previous agreements.

In June of this year, the Loyola Senate passed a motion recommending that Santhanum's case be re-examined by the administration and that he be given a contract for at least the coming year.

However, the Board of Trustees of the College, which is composed of seven Jesuit fathers, rejected the Senate motion.

Few attend convocation to receive diplomas

McGill presented 525 diplomas yesterday afternoon, but only 176 graduates bothered to come to the convocation ceremonies and accept them from Governor General Roland Michener.

Honorary degrees were awarded to three ex-McGill professors, Dr. Judah Hirsch Quastel, Dr. Kenneth Hare, and Dr. Noel Fieldhouse.

Dr. Quastel was Professor of Biochemistry at McGill from 1947-66, and Director of the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute.

Dr. Hare is a former Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at McGill, and was Chairman of the Geography Department from 1950 to 1962.

He recently resigned as President of UBC, and is now a professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Fieldhouse was Dean of Arts and Sciences, and Chairman of the History Department from 1948-62. He was McGill's Vice-Principal (Academic) from 1962-66.

In his convocation address, Dr. Fieldhouse reflected that in the past 40 years that he has been teaching, that he has observed that different groups claim the right to dissent. "Forty years ago, if students had any politically-inspired complaints against a teacher, it was usually that he was too 'radical'. Today, the complaint is likely to be that he is not 'radical' enough."

Comment

In the last few years, the politicians in the province of Quebec have allowed a situation to produced a powderkeg of intolerance of the night before last. An emphasis on "la politique de grandeur" rather than the needs of the people, on the furtherance of personal ambition instead of the discharge of the duties for which they were elected, on circuses instead of bread, has produced a powderkeg of intolerable tensions. Continually, unthinkable strikes have occurred in essential services, paralyzing the province and endangering its people, but the government, instead of remedying the situation which brought these about, has arrogantly ignored grievances and taken punitive and destructive action.

A strike in essential services appears, as a matter of fact, to harm everyone except the government responsible. The strikers often have legitimate complaints which have been arrogantly or negligently ignored. The crisis in Quebec education for example, would have been settled long ago if Mr. Cardinal and Mr. Masse had been more interested in their departments than in their selfish interest in the preservation of their external authority. When a damaging strike does take place, not many members of the general public are going to take any altruistic or liberal attitudes and support the strikers to the detriment of their own interest: this is a sad fact of political life. Therefore an unscrupulous government can afford to wait until the public is beginning to hurt, and then step in with punitive legislation at hardly any risk to its popularity. And the aggrieved parties are back in their original difficulties.

There is no excuse for the flagrant disregard of the public interest by Montreal police and firemen. No monetary grievance can justify the risks to human life of abandoning two million people to anarchy. Two men were murdered that night. But nothing can justify the negligence by the Drapeau-Saulnier administration that allowed this disaster to occur. Or the past, present, and future negligence by governments at all levels, of the threat posed by their smug indifference to the needs of the people.

It is high time that the people of Quebec used their constitutional right to demand less circuses and more bread, for St. Leonard, for the civil service, and for the welfare cases of Little Burgundy. And perhaps, even, for the police?

since four Administration members of the Senate walked out, breaking the quorum.

Following this, Santhanum appealed to the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

Last Monday, Loyola received a telegram from CAUT stating that Santhanum's case should be submitted to binding arbitration, and that the doctor should be kept on salary and given use of his laboratories.

However, the Loyola administration has rejected the CAUT decision, and the Loyola faculty will take no action until the CAUT general conference in November.
